

Quarterly Operations Review — Section 1

Revenue reached 4.2 million dollars, up 11 percent year over year, driven mostly by the new cold-chain corridor between Rotterdam and Milan. Gross margin slipped to 31 percent because diesel surcharges were absorbed rather than passed to customers.

On-time delivery held at 96.4 percent across 18,200 shipments. The Milan hub missed its target twice in August due to a customs systems outage lasting nine hours.

Headcount grew from 212 to 231, with most additions in dispatch and compliance.

The board asked management to model a 5 percent surcharge pass-through for Q4 and to present a contingency plan for the Rotterdam lease, which expires in fourteen months.

Quarterly Operations Review — Section 2

Revenue reached 4.2 million dollars, up 11 percent year over year, driven mostly by the new cold-chain corridor between Rotterdam and Milan. Gross margin slipped to 31 percent because diesel surcharges were absorbed rather than passed to customers.

On-time delivery held at 96.4 percent across 18,200 shipments. The Milan hub missed its target twice in August due to a customs systems outage lasting nine hours.

Headcount grew from 212 to 231, with most additions in dispatch and compliance.

The board asked management to model a 5 percent surcharge pass-through for Q4 and to present a contingency plan for the Rotterdam lease, which expires in fourteen months.

Quarterly Operations Review — Section 3

Revenue reached 4.2 million dollars, up 11 percent year over year, driven mostly by the new cold-chain corridor between Rotterdam and Milan. Gross margin slipped to 31 percent because diesel surcharges were absorbed rather than passed to customers.

On-time delivery held at 96.4 percent across 18,200 shipments. The Milan hub missed its target twice in August due to a customs systems outage lasting nine hours.

Headcount grew from 212 to 231, with most additions in dispatch and compliance.

The board asked management to model a 5 percent surcharge pass-through for Q4 and to present a contingency plan for the Rotterdam lease, which expires in fourteen months.